EXETER HAPPENINGS.

Fire Department Figures In A Little Comedy.

Football Season At The Academy Open's
On The 20th.

Budget Of Other Timely Topics From Our Special Correspondent.

(Special Correspondence.)

Exeter, Sept. 10.
About 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a well known lady living on the square thought she saw fire in the rear of her house. Accordingly she went to the door, where she perceived two college boys and told them to go post haste to the nearest fire alarm box, 45, and call out the department.

The firemen made a quick response and in about three minutes several pieces of apparatus were swarming around her house and the near neighborhood, and captains of companies were inquiring where the blaze was.
No one knew, not even this lady or the two boys. But of course they did not for they were not in sight. Someone said it was down Court street, so an unsuccessful journey was made as far as the next fire alarm box, at the house of Hook and Ladder No. 1.
How street was then given a visit.
Then trips were made to the intermediate streets, but it was the same sad story. The firemen were porplexed, if they did not have the feeling of a little stronger adjective. The crowd, to the number of a thousand or more, who had collected from factory, store and loafing grounds were happy. They enjoyed the ludicrous actions of the fire fighters with the keenest amusement. Finally the order was given to go home.

Now, Chief Cooch, of the Exeter police department, "kicks off" at five o'clock. As he had five minutes to spare, and did not have to walk, he decided to do a little interviewing for a few bashful reporters. He found the lady in question, mentioned above, and got an invitation to come into the parlor. There he discovered that the lady was looking out of her back window, when she saw a fire in a neighbor's barn as "big as a door." She had done what she had thought was right.

Now if the cause of this trouble must be made known, let it be done quietly and with as few words as possible. William Elliott, employed by Dr. William G. Perry, was burning out caterpillar nests in the doctor's apple trees. Many people had lots of fun, but $25 must be divided among them to pay for it. There is a certain moral that the lady and the two boys might take advantage of.

Phillips-Exeter opens her football season on Saturday, Sept. 20, with the New Hampshire college eleven. The college boys have already commenced training and the academy must not open until Sept. 17. This gives the College team a great advantage, but Exeter has never experienced any difficulty in winning this game.

DELIGHTFUL SEA TRIP.

The tourist, in quest of the most attractive trip, and the business man, who wishes to combine pleasure with business, are alike attracted by the trip to New York, through the Sound by daylight, on the direct steamers of the Joy line.

The steamers leave Boston every Wednesday and Saturday at 5 p. m., arriving in New York after a day's sail around Cape Cod and through Long Island Sound, passing in full view of both shores. It is an ideal tourist route, affording, as it does, the benefit of a sea voyage with none of its discomforts.

STONE AT WORK.

Pennsylvania's Governor Trying To Settle Strike

Consults With Directors Of The Steel Corporation.

Promises To Do What He Can To Effect Settlement.

New York, Sept. 9.—Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, who came here today and made an effort to see what could be done toward settling the anthracite strike, returned to Harrisburg tonight, without apparently having been able to accomplish a settlement.

Rumors were afloat that the governor's visit had results, but George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan and company denied tonight that there was any change in the situation.

Before leaving Governor Stone gave out the following statement:

"Attorney General Elkin, Senator Flinn and myself have been in consultation for several hours today with P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, a director of the United States Steel company and associated with Mr. Morgan in many business interests. Mr. Widener is very anxious to see the strike settled, and today took up the matter with Mr. Morgan. We are doing what we can."

TRACKING CRIMINALS.

Murderer Fled 31,000 Miles, But Was Run Down.

There have been long pursuits of criminals, great in the distance traveled, the obstacles overcome and the persistence of pursuing officers, but that of Sergeant Wood, of the Naval, South Africa police, is doubtless a record-breaker. The man sought by Sergeant Wood was charged with embezzling large sums of money at Pietermaritzburg. He got away from South Africa, and went to New York. Although the detective had information as to where his quarry was hiding, yet he had first to visit London to obtain the necessary extradition papers. Then he hurried to America, and with the assistance of the United States police, ran down his man. By the time he had reached Maritzburg he had been traveling land for nearly three months and had covered nearly 31,000 miles.

One of the sternest chases of recent years was after Loys Darrell, formerly sergeant in the Seventh United States Cavalry. Darrell enlisted at the beginning of the Spanish-American war, and distinguished himself in Cuba. There he fell in love with a pretty Spanish girl and beguiled himself in buying luxury for his sweet heart. To obtain more money, he added and murdered a companion in arms named Church. He then fled.

A detective named Dupuy was put upon the murderer's track, and, finding a clue, started for New Orleans. He was right in his surmise that Darrell had gone there, but when he arrived the bird had flown. He had left in a British made transport for South Africa. Dupuy took train for New York, fast boat for Southampton, and by rail across Europe, caught a boat of the German-Dutch African line, and finally arrived at Berlin, in Prussia's East Africa.

There he waited, like a spider for a fly, and, just as Darrell was flying, caught him. He was pursued, he caught him. Later on the detective deposed the prisoner safely in Castle Alderson in New York. He had traveled in all 31,000 miles, and spent 4,250 in the chase.

One of the most astonishing criminals England ever produced was a man named Benson, who began his career in London, with two stolen watches. He expanded his work, and was wandering in moorlands in the city, while he himself, pretending to be an invalid, lived in the greatest luxury in the Isle of Wight. He passed as a great philanthropist, was favored in charitable works, and went into the very heart of society. By dint of having certain officers of the law, he lived on some years on the proceeds of his thievery. One day the watch came to his aid, arrested, and not a long time in Portsmouth jail.

No sooner was he out than he was at his old tricks again. These culminated in Switzerland, where he managed to gain the attention of the families of an English noble. Through her he induced her father to trust him with the investment of his entire capital, some $75,000. He started with the money, Chase, Bankers, a detective caught him at home. To avoid a scandal the victim could not prosecute if Benson could pay up the money. The latter was a man of means. He had a large estate in America. He had a large estate in America. He had a large estate in America.

When the Atlantic Ocean was crossed, Benson was arrested. He was a man of means. He had a large estate in America. He had a large estate in America. He had a large estate in America.

LOST BILL DOUBLED ITSELF.

He was poorly and prosperous, an alternative state of affairs that seemed to give weight to his words. Therefore, the little band gathered in front of an up-town hotel, and which had watched with interest and laughed with mean delight at the man who chased his hat two blocks in one of these sudden gales, listened with respectful attention to the party man who had laughed longer than the others, and who led the way to the entrance.

"That hat-chasing game reminds me of a peculiar thing which happened to me when a boy," he began. "I was brought up on a farm in this state, and was one of those happy-go-lucky youngsters, always in trouble, and with a happy faculty of getting out of scrap. One day my father gave me a $5 bill to go down to the village and buy some things for the farm. My bill I started off holding the bill by the corner and letting the wind fan it about my fingers. There came a sudden puff and the bill was torn from my grasp. I saw it fly over a bush and started off in hot pursuit. It meant money that bill or get the worst feeling that ever a country boy received."

"Jumping over the fence, I saw the bill fluttering merrily about 200 feet from the ground. I ran, I ran, I ran, and nothing to check its progress. My how I ran! Once or twice I nearly lost it when a fresh gust of wind would send it in another direction. I chased the bill all around the field and finally, panting and exhausted, I grasped it and fell to the ground."

"The party man muttered something that sounded like 'chuck' and drained his glass. The crowd followed suit and walked merrily for the time."

"Remember, it is best to believe, but when I recovered my breath and looked at the corner of my fingers, I found it was a $10 bill that somebody else had lost."

Nobody had courage enough to ask what had become of the $5 bill, and the band dispersed in silence. New York Mail and Express.

HE NEEDED ASSISTANCE.

An elderly man with a cane and a fur was intercepted by a police man on Thursday evening. The man was asked to check his progress, and he said he was a poor man. The man was asked to check his progress, and he said he was a poor man. The man was asked to check his progress, and he said he was a poor man.

A WOMAN DEPOSITOR.

She Got Her Money, and Got It, Too, the Way She Wanted It.

"One day during the busy season, when every moment was precious, said a bank teller, a woman presented her passbook and asked to have her money, which amounted to $600."

"I always endeavor to save needless work, and, thinking that she intended making a payment to some one who would only redeposit the money, I asked her if she intended handing all the money over to one person; if so, a check marked 'good' would answer her purpose as well as the cash, besides saving labor."

"Criming me with one disdainful look, she replied: 'I wish the money.'

"The money was duly handed out in ten dollar bills. After spending some fifteen anxious minutes in her efforts to count the money, all the while flicking her fingers regularly, she handed it back to me, all mixed up, with the remark: 'I wish to leave this with you again; I just wanted to see if it was all here.'

The following year the operation was repeated, but I was ready for her. The next time I handed her six one hundred dollar bills. Much to my confusion and complete discomfiture, she returned them, saying, 'I want those tens I left you.'

"She got them."—Philadelphia Times.

How the Ancients Moved Stone.

An unfinished obelisk found in a quarry at Syene showed how the ancients separated these immense monoliths from the native rock. A groove marking the boundary of the stone contained a number of holes into which wooden wedges were firmly driven. The groove was then filled with water, and the swelled wedges cracked the granite the whole length of the groove. The detached block was then pushed forward upon rollers made from palm trees to a large timber raft on the edge of the Nile, where it remained until the next inundation floated the raft to the city where the obelisk was to be set up.

Thousands of hands then pushed it on rollers up a inclined plane to the front of the temple, where it was to stand. The pedestal had previously been placed in position, and a firm causeway of sand covered with planks led to the top of it. Then by means of rollers, levers and ropes made of date palm the obelisk was gradually hoisted into an upright position. In no case has an obelisk been found to be out of the true perpendicular.

White Men In Slavery.

Slavery is so connected in the popular mind with the dusky hue of the African that it seems hard to believe that only about 100 years ago white men could be sold into slavery in New York. It arose through applying the redemption idea to poor immigrants and obtained equally in all the countries of the United Kingdom. A man in England, wishing to come to America, would go to the correspondent of some American house and for a certain sum of money sell himself for a period of from one to three years, as the case might be. Taking the money so raised, he would pay his passage and that of his family to this country. Immediately upon his arrival in New York his "time" would be put up at auction and himself sold to work for the stipulated period before he could be considered a free man. Many men who afterward rose to great prominence came to this country under these distressing conditions.

To Match His Match.

An Englishman in a smoking compartment of a city train a little while back, and at a certain station a German entered the carriage and took his seat opposite him. When the train had started, the foreigner, noticing the other's cigar, inquired if he could give him one.

The Englishman, astonished at the request, reluctantly pulled out his case and saw with disgust the other select the best he could find and take a match from his pocket and light it. After making a few puffs with evident enjoyment, the German, beaming at his companion through his spectacles, unfurlly continued:

"I could not but double you, but I had a match in my pocket and I did not know what to do with it."—Chimes.

A Severe Critic.

A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was "supplying" the pulpit of a country church. After the service, says the New York Evening Post, he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain spoken man, what he thought of "this morning's effort."

"Well," answered the old man slowly, "I'll tell ye; I'll tell ye in a kind of parable. It reminded me of Sam Peck's first deer hunt, when he was green. He followed the deer's tracks all right, but he followed 'em all day in the wrong direction."

Removing Temptation.

Mother—Gracious! Stop that noise up there. Willie, didn't I tell you not to pull that cat's tail again? Willie—I ain't pullin' it, ma. Mother—You must be, or the cat wouldn't screech so. Willie—No, I ain't. I'm jest cuttin' its tail off short so I can't pull it any more.—Philadelphia Press.

No Real Grievance.

Young Wife (with a pout)—So I am a "bird," am I? You used to say I was an angel.

Young Husband—Well, I still give you credit for having wings, don't I?—Chicago Tribune.

The first European city to reach the million in population was Rome (first century A. D.); then came London (1801), then Paris (1851).

I was suffering intensely from pain in the back and lameness in my limbs, and no one could have made me believe that I would get such immediate relief. I had a great deal of trouble with my kidneys. At one time I was given up by the physicians who said I was in the last stages of Bright's disease. I recovered, but my kidneys have always been in poor shape. I got the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Philbrick's pharmacy on Congress street. They drove away the gnawing pain and lessened the soreness in the small of my back. ## American Army Uniforms.

Says They Are Sensible And In Good Taste.

Receives Generals Corbin, Young And Wood In Cordial Manner.

Frankfort-on-Order, Germany, Sept. 9.—The war maneuvers began today. Emperor William as umpire visited both sides. The foreign guests were attached to the Reds, or the invading Russians, and when Emperor William was on that side he was usually surrounded by a group of foreign officers in rich uniforms.

The American visitors, Generals Corbin, Young and Wood, and their aides, were the new drab fatigue uniforms of the United States army. The emperor looked the American officers over closely, and told General Corbin that their uniforms were sensible and in good taste.

His majesty took General Young with him on a trip inside the lines of the Blues, and his bearing toward the Americans was in every way most kind.

GENERAL BERTI SURRENDERS.

Colombian Rebels Score An Important Victory.

Panama, Sept. 9.—The surrender to the Colombian insurgents of the government general, Morales Berti and the troops under his command at Agua Dulce, has now been confirmed.

General Berti, who has been besieged since July 28, only surrendered when his cause was hopeless. In acknowledgment of the surrender, the insurgent general, Herrera, declares that he recognizes the abnegation of General Berti and his men, whom he is succeeding in dominating because of the superiority of his forces, and the quantity of munitions of war of all kinds at his disposition.

He promises to hold inviolate the lives and honor of his prisoners and he allows General Berti to retain his sword in recognition of his heroic defense.

MCCORMICK HAD MONEY.

And He Was Confident That He Could Care For Himself.

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 9.—John A. McCormick, who appeared in police court for drunkenness today, said he was a miner from Alaska, and that his home was in Vancouver, B. C.

When searched at police court over $109 in Canadian money was found in his possession and a check on a Vancouver bank.

When asked why he was so careless as to carry so much money about he took off a miner's belt in which he had several thousand dollars, the total amount of which he refused to make known to the police.

He had also a valuable opal ring set with rare diamonds.

He claimed to be quite able to take care of himself and his money.

The flag is to be taken to Bridgeport, Conn., the headquarters of the Hungarian Sick Benevolent Societies Federation, which has been celebrating its tenth anniversary.

New York, Sept. 9.—Charles O'Neil, a janitor, died in a hospital early to-

The tragedy followed a quarrel in which O'Neil accused his wife of having been unfaithful.

A WOMAN'S CONSCIENCE.

It Forces Her To Confess To Crime Of Murder.

New Orleans, Sept. 9.—A woman's conscience has compelled her to reveal the mystery in the death of Earl C. Lukens, manager of the New Orleans branch of an eastern correspondence school. Lukens was believed to have been accidentally drowned on the evening of Aug. 31.

On that evening a party boarded the yacht Indian for a sail down the river. On the yacht's return it was announced that Lukens had accidentally fallen overboard and drowned. His body was recovered two days later.

Mrs. Kate Jarreau, the young wife of a traveling man, has confessed to Coroner Richard that she pushed Lukens overboard.

Mrs. Jarreau said that she had been bantered by Lukens and had warned him that if he kept on she would throw him overboard. He had continued, and she had made good her threat.

Mrs. Jarreau went on to say that she had wished to tell the truth about the affair on the night of the drowning, but had been prevented by Hans Reig, a member of the party, who had warned everybody that in justice to her good name they should all stick to the accident story.

Mrs. Jarreau is held by the police as a witness.

After she told her story a search was made for Reig and it was discovered that he had left the city.

Deadwood, S. D., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt has put his stamp of disapproval on the proposed cowboy race from Deadwood to Omaha and the contest has been abandoned.

The following is the telegram received from the chief executive's secretary:

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 6.

"Capt. Seth Bullock, Deadwood, S. D.: Referring to the proposed horse race from Deadwood to Omaha, the president would not be willing to have it take place unless it were possible to exercise supervision over the condition in which the horses would come in, and as this would be impossible, he asks you to say in his name that he requests the race not to take place."

cularly its own. So would we fain be ever a field. The batman strolling over the hills and through the swamps realizes that this is practically the end of the flower year. As in the previous month, the flowers are very largely composite. The asters, the asters and the sunflowers lead vivid patches of color to the prospect. There are comparatively few new flowers to be sought for.

However, there are several, the finding of which will be among the calendar events of the year. For instance, it is that in the latter part of the month your wanderings may lead you to the retreat of the most beautiful of all the fall blossoms, the fringed gentian. Its color is of the heaven's own hue and its delicate beauty is so elusive as to defy the most skillful brush of the artist. Who can forget the first introduction to these floral beauties of the fall meadows? Two other but less handsome cousins, the stiff gentian and the closed gentian, also come this month. Damp places are made beautiful by the Jerusalem artichoke, commonly called the wild sunflower, whose bright, cheerful face seems ever smiling a greeting to the passer-by. Another of September's flower-folk robed in blue or violet is the smooth or blue aster found in dry soil and open woods. A familiar little friend with whom almost every one is acquainted, the white heath aster, sometimes called white rosemary or farewell summer, is found in dry soil everywhere. WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10, 1902.

The most that is generally known by the people of this country about Mindanao, the second in size of the Philippine islands, is that it is where the Moros tribesmen live and where the principal opposition to American rule is now centered. But an engineer of the transport Lawton, recently arrived at San Francisco from Manila, who claims to have passed many months in the interior of the great island, says that many Americans are prospecting there and preparing to take advantage of the immense possibilities that will follow the passing of adequate legislation in regard to land and mineral claims. He says excellent gold prospects have been found, and that rubber and gutta-percha trees and valuable timber forests abound. Also that coal of which he shows specimens, exists in great quantity, and is superior in quality to the Japanese coal which is largely used along the eastern coast of Asia. He believes that the adoption of proper land and mineral laws would result in the immediate influx of thousands of enterprising Americans, who in a year would do more to develop the resources of the island and demonstrate its value than the Spaniards did in three hundred years, or than the tribesmen have done since time began. And no doubt he is correct in this, for if there is gold, coal, valuable timber and such things to be had by going for them, neither Moro ferocity nor Mohammedan fanaticism will suffice to keep the white man back once he is authorized by his government to go forward.

SNAP SHOTS.

There are still a few republicans left down in Maine.

If those South American belligerents keep on they may do some real fighting by and by.

J. Pierpont Morgan wouldn't be as big a man as he is if it were not for the newspapers.

Some democratic editors and orators are getting maniacal on the subject of the trusts.

The joint maneuvers are over but the question as to which side licked is as much a mystery as ever.

Abdu Hamid is a big man, but he is pretty well convinced that the American minister is a bigger one.

The next thing we hear, someone will be proposing Mr. Devery as the democratic candidate for president.

The coal magnates should remember that the plain people have a right to protest against freeing to death.

Somewhat the state of Nebraska doesn't seem to be as proud of its distinguished citizen, William J. Bryan, as it ought to be.

Years ago the sensational move had yellow covers, and it is bound in cloth with gilt ornamentations, and bears the imprint of reputable publisher.

Germany hopes that her punishment of the Haytian revolutionists will not be regarded as an infringement of the Monroe doctrine. Foreign powers are very careful of the Monroe doctrine these days.

A YEAR OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Roosevelt throughout his whole public life has been a shining mark for the wags and the cartoonists of the newspapers. He is usually quick in mind and body. He is energetic beyond the comprehension of most men who hold public office. He is incapable of idleness and impatient of slowness in getting his routine done. And he is found of adventure. He hunts (and he hunts big game), he rides (and he rides hard), he walks (and he walks fast), and he indulges in all manly sports. He boxes, he rows, he swims, he wrestles. Worse than all—he talks (and he talks right out). Such a man in the glare of the publicity that beats on the White House provokes more gossip about his energy than a dozen gossip Presidents. And he is sure to commit mistakes of speech and to violate many small conventionalities. But there is a difference between energy—especially physical energy—and rashness, and he has never been a rash man in public action. He is by nature one of the most conservative executives that ever filled high office. For his mind is not imaginative nor constructive. It works best in the straight line of action. He does not naturally turn to the making of new policies. He is aptest at carrying out ones. His temperament is executive rather than creative. He is not likely to try new things. He travels faster than other men, but he keeps on well-traveled roads. Such a man brings many things to pass, but he is not rash by nature he is conservative.

The whole people have now come to know him and to know him well; for he conceals nothing. He lives and works in the public view. It used to be said of President Harrison that when one saw him close at hand he seemed larger than he seemed at a distance; and of President Cleveland that he was much more impressive at a distance than he was close at hand. President Roosevelt is the same, near or seen far. Frank, fearless, energetic, a "sturdy gentleman" as President Eliot called him, and never rash. To have won the general confidence by a year of routine work is much. But he has done more than this: he has keyed the Executive Department of the government to a higher pitch of energy than it has shown since it became the vast machine that it is. The army, the navy, the civil service have a new note of efficiency. Nor has the influence of his energetic temperament stopped there. It has been felt throughout a large part of our political life. This is much to say about the influence of one man exerted for a single year through the routine of official work; but it is not too much to say of Mr. Roosevelt.—The World's Work.

A TYPICAL LABOR AGITATOR.

Consider the bridge-builders. Said I to their agent, "What would happen if the Pencoys or Steelton bridge-builders were aggrieved in Africa or Asia?" "The men would strike in New York," said he. There is union power reaching round the world. This agent has served the union for the last five years at ten dollars a day and expenses not here, abroad. Like other union officers he thinks union as you and I think the "shop" of our daily toil. He goes armed. He shuns no trouble. I asked a member of his union about him. "He's all right," came back. Why not? None of his men are out of work; their pay is four dollars and as much more as they can earn; their day is eight hours; they have a practical monopoly of their trade. The business agent has done it.

"I have heard it said," he remarked to me one evening, "that we fatten on the workmen, the deluded workmen. These boys, five years ago worked ten hours a day for two dollars and seventy-five cents. Each contributes half a cent a day to my salary; can they afford that from their dollar and a quarter added pay? Is the half a cent a bad investment?" and he walked quickly toward a meeting of his local union, to be stopped in the hall and on the stairs by seventeen whippersnappers—I counted—on urgent business. A successful politician could not be more beset.

ARMY ORDERS.

Leaves of absence have been granted as follows: First Lieut. Wm. N. H. Hughes, Jr., 13th Infantry, one month's extension, First Lieut. H. S. Hathaway, signal corps, two months, Capt. A. E. Williams, 3d Cavalry, two months. Capt. H. A. Slevest, 9th Cavalry, has been ordered to temporary duty at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., pending the arrival of his regiment. First Lieut. Frederick J. Horman, 9th Cavalry, has been ordered to duty at Fort Robinson, Neb. Cadet Francis B. Upham, third class of the military academy of last year, has been turned back to join the present third class at once. This action was taken upon the recommendation of the academic board. Leave for four months has been granted Chaplain James W. Hillman, leave for two months to Capt. Joseph T. Crabbs.

The Flying Yankee passed through here on Tuesday evening with only one section and was ten minutes late, the first time for weeks.

SCROFULA.

To cure Scrofula take Scott's Emulsion. Scrofula may be described as "scattered consumption." It is consumption of the small glands under the skin, and these break out into the sores. Scott's Emulsion heals these sores.

But there's more to the story. The loss of flesh and great weakness that comes with Scrofula is a regular part of the disease—the same as in consumption of the lungs. For this as for the sores, Scott's Emulsion is just the remedy.

Flesh and strength are gained by the use of Scott's Emulsion quicker than in any other way.

Scrofulous children improve in every way on Scott's Emulsion.

Things Heard And Talked About In Washington.

Late Political News Gathered On The Spot.

Breezy Letter From The Special Correspondent Of The Herald.

The reports from officials who have recently returned from Alaska indicate that that country, generally thought of as a great frozen land, has a wonderful agricultural future, especially in connection with stock raising and growing hardy grains which yield immense crops. It will be remembered how foolish the democrats thought our purchase of Alaska for $7,500,000 to be. It was in fact the height of republican folly and extravagance. Leaving out the mining industry entirely, the timber, agriculture and fishery resources of the territory are worth annually more than the entire purchase price.

Congressman Littlefield made a little speech the other day at Lewiston, Maine, which the democrats have been studying carefully. They are not sure, after all, that this is such a good year for "tariff reform." After ridiculing the democrats for their lack of vision, and their criticism for its attack upon the American army, he commented on the democratic statement that the "tariff fosters the trusts." In the first place, he stated that there are thousands of corporations that are not fostered by the tariff, the biggest trust in the country, Standard Oil, leading them. Anthracite is a trust and there is no protection on that. Then go to free-trade England, he said, and you will find the country honeycombed with trusts. It has been since 1840. They are all over Europe and in countries that have never heard of tariff. But, continued Mr. Littlefield, strike off the tariff, and who goes to the wall first? Why, it is the weaker party, the individual competitor. The friends of Mr. Littlefield promise some interesting trust talk this fall from the Maine statesman.

Some prominent republican politicians who have been examining the recently issued democratic text book consider that it is an almost equally good republican campaign book.

Six million dollars, the income from the sale of western public lands in the last two years, lies in the Treasury available for the construction by the government of irrigation works in the West, under the recent act of congress. The question of the application of this money is causing no little interest in the West. The government engineers are investigating different dam sites upon which to construct the initial works which it is recognized must serve as an object lesson of national irrigation. Of course each state is anxious to have this work done within its borders, and the consequence is that every time a government engineer lands at any town and starts to look over a reservoir site, the people of the section immediately build high hopes that the government will select their site, and this usually expands into a press despatch or two stating such to be the fact. The administration at Washington feels the responsibility of the undertaking and can be relied upon to see that the first example of Federal irrigation is carried out and successfully carried out. It is claimed that the national benefits which will be shown to arise will astonish the people of the East.

The democratic campaign text book is out. From now on the thunder of the democratic orators may be heard throughout the land.

The book gives much attention to imperialism and to the trusts, but strangely omits to say anything about Free Silver. Two recent editorials from the Commonwealth, printed near the back of the book, seem to be about the only evidence of the existence, not to say leadership, of Mr. Wm. J. Bryan.

A bitter attack is made upon the late President McKinley through his Philippine policy, in which President Roosevelt is also involved. The campaign book melodramatically charges that the intention of the republican party has been, and is, not to stop at the retention of the Philippine Islands, but that it contemplates a general policy of conquest throughout the world. President Roosevelt is described as defending and glorifying the bloody colonization of old-world powers. The repeal of the tariff is particularly advised as a trust remedy.

To a man up a tree, the United States has been having a pretty hard time of it. According to Mr. Bryan we have been having only "temporary prosperity." The Commonwealth, a son of Kansas, now states "that the republican prosperity is about over." What the country really needs (in order to give employment to the calamities) is to have some of the large—real large—fine times of the Cleveland-Wilson low tariff regime of 1889-95.

The poor old democratic party! Poor in every sense and the least important of these is money. The brilliant record which the country has made under republican policy and administration has made the democracy penniless in everything worth having. In virtue, principle, in convictions, in definite purpose, in progression, in strength, in respectability, in leadership, and in prospects the party is absolutely bankrupt. The only thing left is its "glorious past." And the only part of that past which can be pointed to as "glorious" is that which is so far back in the shadow of vanished years that nothing can be remembered about it.

The statistics of the year and the century furnish some important information. But it is a little difficult to understand just how the democratic orators and editors are going to serve up the figures to their own advantage in the first place the figures all indicate progress and prosperity, and in the next place the records have been made under an almost continuous republican rule.

Under the caption of "Still we Scold," the Kansas City Journal pokes a good deal of fun at Mr. Bryan, and at the same time makes some statements which will be difficult rendering for the democratic campaigners. The Journal states that Mr. Bryan uses a column of valuable space in the Commonwealth, charging democrats throughout the country to "arraign" the republican party for its record on finance, for its record on trusts, for its record in making appropriations, for its record in the management of the army and the navy, for its record, indeed, on every public question. The arraignment, too, is to be based largely on the fact that during the last twenty years the republican party has been "drifting" from its ancient moorings." It is remarkable how Mr. Bryan, like other distinguished democrats, appears to now love the republican party as it was anciently moored. One comes almost to the belief that these statesmen would have been republicans in those days before the drifting process commenced. However, the Journal declares that "Uncle Joe" Cannon in a speech in the house of representatives, summed up the situation in a more concise and pungent form than does Mr. Bryan in his charge, when the former said in answer to a long-winded democratic speech "The platform suggested by my distinguished colleague is 'Still we Scold.'"

Partridges and woodcock are said to be unusually numerous in the covers about the city and gunners are anticipating the best sport for several years.

How does this Bryanite utterance of 1890 sound now in these later days? "If McKinley and the republican party are successful and put in power for the next four years, wages will be decreased. Hard times will come upon us and over the land. The price of wheat will come down and the price of gold will go up. Mortgages on our farms will be foreclosed by the money lenders. Shops and factories will be closed. We will export no goods and we will import from foreign lands the goods which we use. This will ruin, want, and misery be with us."

A BEAUTIFUL PLAY.

The fact that a priest represents the leading character in The Parish Priest lends interest to it, as it is a character that few playwrights will attempt to deal with. In most plays where the priest forms one of the characters, he is the counsellor, and always the quieter of disturbances, rushing in with uplifted hands and asserting his clerical authority. The West, when does nothing of the sort, except in the second act, where he parts the two brothers in a fight, as any other man would do.

Mr. Sully for whom the part was created, is pleased with it, and says that he will play it for many years to come, as he knows and feels the confidence that it will enjoy a prosperous career. "The tendency of the times," he said, "are becoming more for moral plays and refined dramas, and while we are at present engaged in educating the people to accept a drama of this sort, our efforts are bound to be a success. The Parish Priest contains all that is beautiful and moral in life. It is a simple story that appeals to all. It is one that after seeing and leaving the theatre, one reflects over. It is also so different from anything ever before written. Then again, it is an American play, and while the priest is the leading character, yet there is no religion in it, and therefore it is acceptable to all classes and denominations. One passage that I think a very strong one is The Priest forgives, the man does not. That shows two distinct characters in one, the priest's forgiveness being sought for a wrong done to his ward, and he cheerfully gives it in that capacity, but as a man, having the future happiness of the child at heart, he must resent the wrong."

ON THE DIAMOND.

Providence is forging ahead in the Eastern league.

Boston's chances for the American league pennant are improving.

One or two good games may be played in this city before the end of the season.

The Woonsocket Gymns, with Dike Varney in the box, defeated the Nashua New England league team on Monday.

Pitcher Gokey, Nashua's pet twirler, has joined the Worcester Eastern league team, and won his first game on Monday.

The Newmarkets and the Exeter Clippers are to play a series of games for the championship of southern New Hampshire. It seems as if Portsmouth might well be consulted before that championship is given away.

Frank Morrissey, late with the Manchester New England league champions, pitched for the Chicago Nationals on Monday, and held Boston down to five hits. The Beaneaters won the game, but it took the best work of Vic Willis to do it. The score was two to one.

FASTEST BOAT AFLOAT.

A New York dispatch says: Charles R. Flint's twin screw yacht Arrow beat her own and all other records Saturday over an officially measured course on the Hudson river, between Ardsley and Livingston, by making a nautical mile of 6,080 feet in 92 seconds, or a statute mile in a little more than 1 minute 18 seconds, or at the rate of 29.24 knots or nautical miles or 44.13 statute miles an hour. Her best record heretofore was 137.5 for a statute mile of 5,280 feet, or at the rate of 33 statute miles an hour with one boiler. The feat of yesterday was accomplished without accident or indication of undue strain, and the craft at its highest speed raised only a low bow wave, did not "channel" or wallow, and kept to her running lines.

The Chinese Way.

In its war with England and France in 1859-60 China was easily conquered and forced to a humiliating peace. The Peking Gazette, the official organ of the government, however, reported the following concerning that treaty of peace:

"As the western barbarians have admitted their wrongs and humbly solicited for peace, the emperor in his infinite goodness has granted their prayer and, moreover, has made them a present of a large sum of money (indemnity of war) to enable them to begin an honest life, so that they may not again be driven to murder and rapine."

THE CITY FARM.

A Little Bird Warbles Something About It in a Correspondent's Ear.

The following is from the Portsmouth correspondent of Foster's Democrat:

Apparently authentic sources yield the information that at the meeting of the city council on Thursday of this week an interesting question, which has lain dormant for a few weeks, is to be revived and possibly settled.

When Mayor Pender entered into his duties as chief magistrate of the city in his inaugural message he advocated doing away with the city farm.

Shortly after this message was delivered a considerable antagonism arose between his honor and the council, so that neither body was willing to meet the other in joint convention for choosing a successor to Superintendent Shannon, whom it was the mayor's wish to oust. Finally another wedge was brought to bear and the overseers of the poor favoring the removal of the inmates of the city farm from here to Brentwood, the aldermen voted nearly unanimously in favor of the scheme. So the farm was left without inmates, but the superintendent's salary went on just the same, although he had and has had to do nothing at all to do. The big buildings have lain idle ever since this action and not even a suggestion has been made as to their disposition with the single exception of one, which appeared in an out of town morning paper, recommending that they be used as a sort of overflow for the public schools of the city. Whether or not truant and refractory pupils were to suffer confinement in the insane ward, was not told. Now it is said that Dr. S. E. A. Pickering, formerly of New present a bill in relation to this matter on Thursday evening, the purport of which is being kept a close secret. It is for various reasons improbable that the bill relates to the removal of the present superintendent, for it seems likely that such a suggestion would meet with disaster.

MAY CHANGE RESULT.

Account Assured in York County On Account of Alleged "Defective Ballots."

A recount of the votes for sheriff in York county is an assured fact, and it is considered not unlikely that such a move will result in the election of Edward H. Emery of Sanford, instead of the re-election of Sheriff Newell T. Fogg, as at first announced, says a Sanford despatch.

The recount first given out from many towns have been corrected, and now Fogg's majority is placed at 172 the smallest majority ever given a sheriff in York county.

Mr. Emery was seen at his home and he said that he had been called to attend a meeting of the county campaign committee at Biddeford, and that the chairman, Dr. C. M. Sleeper of South Berwick, would demand a recount.

The committee had learned that in Alfred six votes had been thrown out which were evidently intended for Emery. The voters in each instance, in preference to using a sticker, had written in the place of Fogg's name the name of Edward H. Emery, but omitted the words "of Sanford."

In Sanford a large number of such votes were counted, and it is claimed that they should be.

It was also learned that Waterboro and many other towns had thrown out such ballots as defective. In some towns Emery lost more than twenty from that cause alone.

There are twenty-seven towns and cities in the county and a very small fraction from each would wipe out Fogg's majority.

The estimate that in the county five hundred ballots were decided defective and thrown out, and that 95 per cent. of them were intended for Emery and 5 per cent. for Judge Cram, candidate for county attorney, is considered conservative.

SCHOOL CLOCK GONE.

Plains School Building Broken Into and Articles Carried Away.

Sometime during the summer vacation the little one story brick school house situated on the eastern side of the Portsmouth Plains was broken into by burglars and the school room ransacked. The school clock and many other useful articles are among the missing. Supt. Morrison reported the affair to the police on Tuesday and Marshal Entelle and Officer Shannon visited the premises, but could get no clue of the missing property.

WANTS ANOTHER GAME.

Manager of Newmarkets Tells People of Dover All About That Defeat Here.

Harry W. Haines, manager of the Newmarket baseball team, has evidently been losing a lot of sleep since his players were so decisively whipped here last Saturday, for now he comes out in Foster's Democrat with a long challenge to another game. Why Mr. Haines should send his "spiel" to a Dover daily, and not to a Portsmouth paper, is something of a puzzle, unless he was afraid the Portsmouth team would see it. Here is the "spiel" which Mr. Haines has promulgated (to the people of Dover):

Newmarket, N. H., Sept. 8, 1902. Foster's Democrat, Dover, N. H.:

On Saturday last the Newmarket team went to Portsmouth to play the team at that place. Portsmouth was represented by as good a team as we have met this season and, in justice to one player, before we go farther in this letter, we would say they played a clean game throughout. Our instructions were, as usual, to play baseball as it is known, defined and governed by league rules. We were unaware that at Portsmouth they had adopted rules and regulations unknown on a ball field, such as would have shaken Nick Young's theory to its foundation. And the enforcer and interpreter of those rules, that man Lyons, "he who had played ball before we were born," yes, he must have played long before we were born, probably a member of Old Noah's team, for his new rules and interpretations of the old were something marvelous. The game was played (?) at the "Plains," a ground that no stranger seemed to have suffered a Mr. Pelee eruption and later to have been sown down and staked with electric road poles by Lovell of railroad fame. Roads criss-crossed it in such a complex way that it made one think of a Chinese puzzle. As regards the grounds we could have sympathized with the management had he only kept the crowd back, but he did not; instead like hungry wolves, they flocked over the base lines, filled up the left and right gardens, snarling and growling, and gaining courage in numbers, a courage very like that of the same ravenous animal. Portsmouth, you were bound to win that game one way or the other, and you "ok the other." We acknowledge we do not know how to play the game, but should the management of that team desire to play what the public knows and understands as baseball, such as is governed by league rules, we would be only too happy to accommodate them. To make it more interesting, we will play the same team that represented Portsmouth last Saturday on the Dover grounds for $50 a side and the gate receipts.

Trusting you will publish the above I am, Yours truly,

HARRY W. HAINES, Manager.

IT WAS ROUGH.

Yacht Narrowly Escaped Going Ashore Tuesday Afternoon.

It was very rough outside Tuesday afternoon and night, and at the Isles of Shoals the seas broke with such force on the shores of the islands, that the Appledore stage was towed in by the steamer Merryconeg.

The little steamer Sam Adams came in, in the afternoon and was forced to abandon the return trip at the mouth of the harbor on account of the heavy sea.

A yacht which had anchored off Fort Point, dragged her anchor, and was in imminent danger of going ashore, when the Merryconeg, on her way back to the Shoals, observed the yacht's predicament, and gave her a line and a tow to a place of safety. The Merryconeg did not continue her trip.

NOT OPENED YET.

It was expected, from statements made by officials of the road, that the new trolley line between this city and Exeter would be opened to the public today. Up to two o'clock this afternoon, however, no car had been sighted at this end of the line. The road has practically been completed for several weeks. The power house at Stratham is in running order and there are said to be plenty of cars on hand, but there is an aggravating hitch somewhere. For three weeks residents along that line have been calling incessantly that it be put in operation. The railroad commission has not yet made their formal trip of inspection over the road.

GET TOGETHER, BOYS.

It is Time To Begin Preparations For The Football Season.

The football season is rapidly approaching, and it behooves the local enthusiasts to get to work at once if Portsmouth is to have creditable representation on the gridiron this fall.

There are any number of good players in the city and a team can easily be put on the field fully capable of upholding Portsmouth's enviable reputation. For many years a football team has been sent out from this city, and we have come to look forward with each recurring autumn to good sport on the gridiron. Thanksgiving day would not be Thanksgiving day in Portsmouth without a football game.

For the past two years, the local teams have not borne the name of the city, but the Unity club and the Maplewoods deserve great credit for keeping the sport alive, and for the clever work done by their respective teams.

This year, however, it is hoped that we may have a city team, one which will play under the name of Portsmouth and the captain and manager of which will be chosen by the votes of all the players of the city. The clubs stepped into the breach at the right time, but the time has now come for all the players in the city to join hands and work for the athletic supremacy of Portsmouth itself.
